NAPOLEON'S CAMPAIGN IN RUSSIA IN 1812.

Price 50 cents.

By LOUIS RELLETAR.

Now that the Anglo-French army is dispatched to Adrianople or to the Crimea, to commence the terrible fight with the Russians, every reader who wishes to become familiar with the theater of war, should peruse this powerful historical romance, so faithfully narrating the great French Army's advance on Moscow and their disastrons retreat. Heat what a great authority pronounces of this masterly military drama by the "Soott of Germany."

From Blackwood's Magazine.

"We consider this his masterpiece, as it is also the one most popular in Germany. We hold 1812' the best novel of its class that has appeared in the German angagae. It is historical and military chapters would, by their fidelity and spirit, give it high rank in whatever tongue it had been written. Although well-drawn and well-master the test print chapter a mystery to runnate, while of incident there is certainly an abundance, the real fascination of the book resides in the account of the advance to Moscow, of the confagration of the city, and the subsequent retreat. The great power and truthfulness with which these events are descited convey the impression that the writer was an eye witness of the scene he so well describes. We cannot doubt that Mr. Reliata bottained much information from some who made that terrible campaign. He schnowledges als great obtained much by a transfer had been writer for the scene he so well describes.
